

Woman Loses Battle To Escape Term In State Reformatory

COURT UPHELD BY DECISION

Mrs. Joseph E. Savage Not Likely To Carry Arson Case To Supreme Court.

Special To The Star
BUCYRUS, Sept. 30.—Mrs. Joseph E. Savage, indicted more than a year ago on a charge of arson, and found guilty to setting fire to her home on the small Savage farm a short distance east of Sulphur Springs, has lost her fight in the court of appeals and unless Judge Wright of common pleas court should find reason for suspending execution of sentence, will be taken to Marysville to serve a sentence of from one to three years in the state reformatory for women.

The decision of the upper court was received here this morning. The court of appeals finds no error in the case as tried in the lower court.

Interviewed this morning, counsel for Mrs. Savage stated that he did not believe an effort would be made to get the case into the supreme court, and he expected his client to bow to the inevitable and prepare to go to Marysville to serve her term of from one to three years.

The case is one of the oddest ever to come into the Crawford county courts. Mrs. Savage confessed attempting to set fire to the house, but she disclaimed any knowledge of what she was doing. A written confession set forth what she admitted to be the facts: "If you have proof I did it," explaining that she did not know who had set fire to the property but that she must have done so if the authorities had proof.

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, Oct. 1

ACCORDING to the planetary configurations the indications are for the stress of social, artistic, domestic and romantic activities rather than business, although all those affairs relating to such interests may successfully engage the attentions. Social correspondence or affairs of friendship, with profound personal leanings in this direction, may be absorbing to the setting aside of more commonplace concerns. There may be unusual indulgence in impulses.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year in which domestic, social, romantic or artistic matters may claim their most active attention, possibly to the detriment of strictly business matters, although those business concerns having to do with artistic, domestic, social or feminine affairs or amusements may thrive.

A child born on this day may be particularly gracious, popular and sympathetic, with his talents leaning toward art, music, letters or the finer things of life.

GOOD SHOT

Farmer Shoots Officers Thinking They Are Chicken Thieves.

By International News Service
CLEVELAND, Sept. 29.—Mistaken for chicken thieves, acting Marshal Wisniewskof and Deputy Marshal Ladd Turek of Independence village, were wounded in the face by buckshot Monday.

The shooting occurred on the farm of Fritz Koller who, having been bothered with chicken robbers recently, called the marshal's office and asked for protection. The two officials set out for the Koller farm.

Koller, peering from a window of his home, saw the two men moving about in the vicinity of his henhouse. Deciding they were thieves, he took down his shotgun and opened fire. He got his men, but they weren't the thieves. They were Wisniewskof and Turek. Koller was exonerated of all blame.

NURSE PREPARES INSTRUCTION BOOK

Miss Florence Spaulding To Conduct Health Work in Schools of City.

Miss Florence Spaulding, supervising nurse under the direction of Health Commissioner Dr. N. Sifrit, has prepared a manual concerning the health program in city schools for the present year. These manuals will be distributed to each teacher and principal in the schools.

The school nurse will make weekly visits to each building and will be subject to call at other times. Health officials believe that regardless of what they or nurses are capable of doing, the teacher holds the greater responsibility for keeping disease from the school room.

The school health nurse is attempting to visit the schools on a schedule this year in order that teachers and principals may know when or where she may be reached. The schedule allows the nurse one hour a week for each school. If something pressing occurs, the nurse can be called at whatever school she may be in or by calling the main offices.

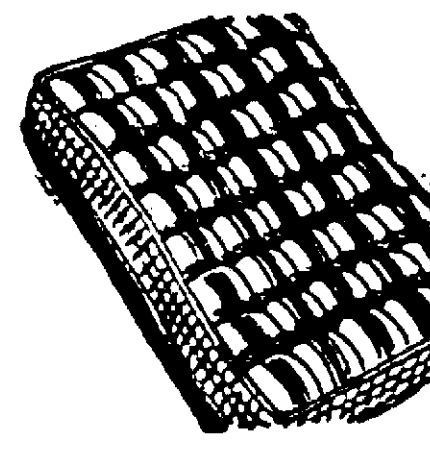

It is the aim of the department to have each school equipped with adequate first aid equipment which the principal or teachers will be instructed in using.

for real money that are worth nothing.

IN OLD-FASHIONED whist the motto used to be, "When in doubt take the trick." Wall Street's motto is, "When in doubt, discard your aces, that you may hold on to your deuces."

What became of all the money that all the people think they have lost? Who has got the thousands of millions lost in stocks by Americans, and the other thousands of millions lost by Europeans that gambled in the American stock boom? What became of all that money? Who got it? Was it real money or imaginary?

MR. SINCLAIR, the oil man, has $72,500,000 cash ready to loan which nobody seems to want. Does that seem like a poverty-stricken ruined nation?

He got the 72 millions from Standard Oil of Indiana, that bought something he had for sale and paid cash. That doesn't seem "poor."

WHAT'S THE MATTER with us? Is there really ANYTHING the matter with us except lack of courage, and the fact that some backbones that were made of granite in September, 1929, have suddenly changed to mush in September, 1930?

DEMOCRATS START
ON CAMPAIGN TOUR

State Candidates To Visit All Sections Following First Rally Last Night.

By The Associated Press
MARIETTA, O., Sept. 23.—Democratic candidates for U. S. Senator and state offices, fresh from the formal launching of their campaign here last night, today set out on a tour of the state to level their guns at the Hoover and Cooper administrations.

The first week of the speaking tour will be spent at Steubenville, East Liverpool, Salem, Warren, Dover, Dennison, Youngstown and Cleveland.

George White, the party's candidate for governor who had the advantage of speaking in his home city, Robert Bulkley of Cleveland, who asks election to the senate on a platform calling for repeal of prohibition, and all candidates on the state ticket addressed last night's opening rally.

Bulkley reaffirmed his stand against prohibition and promised to work for repeal of the eighteenth amendment if elected. He asserted that tariff revision meant against the United States and sent business to its lowest point in many years.

Bulkley expressed wholehearted support for White, who is known as a dry. The senatorial candidate said prohibition is a federal issue and not a matter up to the governor.

While charged the state Republican administration with extravagance and increased taxation, he pledged himself to rid the state payroll of "unnecessary employees," and to work for tax revision.

Attorney General Rules Buyers Save Lives of Impounded Canine.

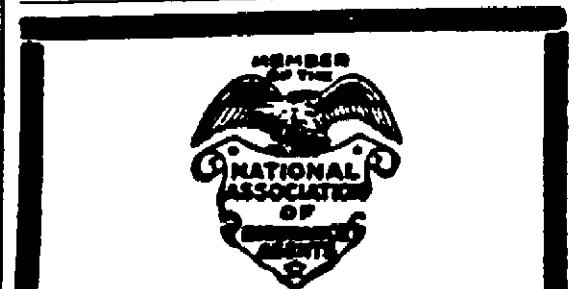

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 23.—A dog's life may not mean much to keepers of dog pounds, but to Attorney General Belman the interests of the creatures are second in importance only to mankind.

Perhaps the attorney general has a dog of his own, or again it may be he simply has a kind heart which goes out in sympathy to street dogs who are continuously under the eye of the dog catcher. Nevertheless, he has done the homeless dogs in Ohio a good turn.

He ruled that dogs under sentence of death at a dog pound may be sold to those willing to adopt them, upon payment of any amount agreeable to the dog warden.

Will Leaves Picture Lot To Tour Through Western Mining Towns; Finally Finds Place Without LiquorVisits Donner Lake, Famous For Its Pioneer

Hardships.

BY WILL ROGERS

WELL all I know is just what I read in the scandal sheets, and what I hold a clinic over as I stroll hither and non. Well Sir I must tell you more about that mining town of "Bodie," Cal. It was one of the famous mining camps of later days, but had been practically deserted for years, but with the demand for gold here lately and the improved and cheaper method of extracting it, there was a revival of the famous old place. Harry Carr, one of the best newspaper men on this or any other coast, had been up there writing wonderful stories about the old days, and mining town to be convalescing, and about to reach good health again. He claimed the thing was running almost as wide open as one of our big Cities, that the gambling and drinking was in a small way on a comparison with New York or Los Angeles.

Well in my times, (I am talking like one of the early Pioneers.) I have seen some of the boys foolishly, and at times otherwise, lay a small wager on the outcome of a hazardous game. And in passing by I had prepped in under swinging doors and there would be men sipping various nectars. Well Mr. Rogers and I were just out prowling around. We were working on spilling a fine old classic, and had been taking a great part of the Scenes on the original site where the play was laid, at Lake Tahoe.

Right under our nose was "Donner Lake" the place where the most famous of all pioneer stories of hardships, why there was where they had spent the winter within fifteen miles of the summit, but just too late to get over. That's where perhaps the only case of cannibalism was ever practiced in our country. It was afterwards admitted on the very best of authority that they actually had resort to the use of human flesh to exist. It was one of the greatest stories of pioneer life. If you have read the "Life of the Donner Party" you don't know nothing of suffering and hardships. The California Societies are doing a great deal to preserve the spirits and history of old things and they have a fine monument to commemorate the event. Then we went over practically the route that they hoped to make, from Donner Lake to Sutters Fort (now Sacramento) and through the old fort as it is preserved today by patriotic citizens, and it should be but its kinder a travesty on justice that while they kept the Fort, they did nothing for the man, that made it a Fort and saved the early settlers. He died destitute in Washington trying to get a little dab of money from our great Government, a mere pittance of what he had spent on preserving the life of some of the early settlers.

There is a story, the life of that fellow Sutter. All the gold was found on his place. He owned all the country, he developed it, he improved conditions there, and yet by the aid of thieves, courts, and injustice, he lost the whole thing. Yet he had done more for his Country, real constructive work, than Washington had, up to the 137.21, of which 50 per cent, or $10,568.61, went back into the various subdivisions while the remainder was divided among the probate court, auditor, treasurer and the state, with the latter receiving $8,309.11. Another item of $437.58 was distributed to the state bureau of accounting.

Other beneficiaries of the semi-annual settlement, with the amounts they received, are as follows: County board of education, $4,500; county health board, $4,269.77, and tuition paid for Marion county children attending homes in the state, $1,127.50.

Make Advance Draws
Due to the belated settlement, advance draws were made by practically every subdivision to tide them over during the month of September. A total of $242,900 was distributed in this fashion, $171,300 going to the city and other corporations, $67,600 to the schools and $4,000 to the townships.

The county departments' $183,585.43 went into three departments, $181,401.09 going into the general fund; $88,598.90 into the county roads, and $15,587.44 to pay interest on and to retire bonds.

The $1,050,988.70 collected by the treasurer made a total of $2,143,668.74 collected during the year, $1,097,677.04 having been taken in and distributed in March. The total charge for the year was $2,498,117.48, of which $349,450.74 remains uncollected.

Delinquent personal tax collections amounting to $5,457.67 were made by the treasurer during the year, $5,284.24 of this amount coming at the March settlement and $183.43 at the second-half collection.

Subdivisions and the amount received yesterday, including advance draws, are as follows:

BOYS FACE CHAIR

Two Youths Aged 14 and 17
Charged With Murder.

By The Associated Press
ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Sept. 23.—Two boy bandits, both charged with being killers, reached the end of a brief career of crime today and found themselves facing death in the electric chair.

They were John Wood, 14, the youngest person in Ohio ever charged with first degree murder, and Louis Kuhnman, 17.

Young County Prosecutor George C. McKelvey, confessed the fatal shooting of William Meeker, 60-year-old farmer, during a highway robbery 10 days ago, and implicated Kuhnman, who also confessed.

McKelvey said the grand jury will return indictments tomorrow formally charging the pair with murder.

WON'T TALK

Bishop Cannon Declines to Discuss Accusations of Church.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Bishop James Cannon, Jr. of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was back in Washington today preparing to defend himself against accusations brought by four ministers of his church during his absence in Brazil.

The bishop maintained a steadfast refusal to answer questions. "I have nothing to say," he repeated over and over again. Finally he added: "You understand the English language, don't you?"

But the questioning persisted and he observed:

"I don't see why a person can't attend to his own business without being harassed by newspaper reporters."

Mr. Henry King our Director had told me that he had seen just about all of my face that he desired for exterior photographic purposes, and that if I wanted I could head for home, and as they had a few more days work without me I needed to be in any hurry to get to home. Well that was right up my alley. I bet a lot of you like this too. I love to drive around, especially look over queer old places, especially historic old spots. Well that's Country up around in the mountains of California, why you could be there from now on, just looking at places that you had read about all your life.

Cannibalism in U. S.
Right under our nose was "Donner Lake" the place where the most famous of all pioneer stories of hardships, why there was where they had spent the winter within fifteen miles of the summit, but just too late to get over. That's where perhaps the only case of cannibalism was ever practiced in our country. It was afterwards admitted on the very best of authority that they actually had resort to the use of human flesh to exist. It was one of the greatest stories of pioneer life. If you have read the "Life of the Donner Party" you don't know nothing of suffering and hardships. The California Societies are doing a great deal to preserve the spirits and history of old things and they have a fine monument to commemorate the event. Then we went over practically the route that they hoped to make, from Donner Lake to Sutters Fort (now Sacramento) and through the old fort as it is preserved today by patriotic citizens, and it should be but its kinder a travesty on justice that while they kept the Fort, they did nothing for the man, that made it a Fort and saved the early settlers. There is a story, the life of that fellow Sutter. All the gold was found on his place. He owned all the country, he developed it, he improved conditions there, and yet by the aid of thieves, courts, and injustice, he lost the whole thing. Yet he had done more for his Country, real constructive work, than Washington had, up to the time he was chosen to lead our Army. California should have maintained him in splendor for the balance of his days if he had lived even till Farmers got relief. But you get the life of this fellow Sutter, and it will make any other Autobiography look like the life of an Interior Decorator.

Jumping Frog's Home
But we got to be on our way. Then we went down through all the old early 49 camps, Sutter Creek, Angels Camp, in Calaveras, that's the exact home of Mark Twain's Jumping frog, and really the story that did more to make Twain than any other one thing he ever did. They have Frog Rodeo there every year, Frog Singing, Frog Jumping, and wind up by eating all the frogs that had contested, and everybody wind up with a Frog in their throat. Then Brete Hart was there and all his stories are around in that country, Jackson, one of the early ones. I had made two pictures there previously, and had been back for ten years.

They got a great bunch of folks, Italian Americans, fine citizens, and the most hospitable people on you ever saw. Sure glad to see the old place again. Then to Senora, another old timer, which helped me fine, and is today a real little town. Then over Senora, to pass. Scenery Oh boy what views. But his getting late we must get to Bodie. Its away over near the Nevada line in the sage brush desert. My wife was afraid to go.

DENIES CHARGES

Akron Man and Woman Plead Not Guilty to Murder.

By United Press
AKRON, O., Sept. 23.—Denial that they were lovers or were guilty of the bomb plot that led to the death of Clarence B. Barnes was made today by Mrs. Lula Esther Barnes and Marshall W. Corniel, charged with Barnes' death.

The pair submitted to an interview in the Summit county jail where they are held pending preliminary hearing Friday. "I think the detectives will soon find out that someone other than I did it," said Corniel, a tall giant paperhanger who lived in the same house with Barnes and his wife. The widow and Corniel were arraigned on first degree murder charges yesterday and Friday was set as the date for their hearing. Both entered pleas of not guilty.

Barnes was killed when dynamite that had been attached to the ignition of an auto he was driving, exploded.

It will be one of the largest repeater stations in the state and will be an important center for cross-country long distance traffic.

Seek Means To Lessen
Highway Traffic Toll

By The Associated Press
PITTSBURGH, Sept. 23.—The reckless driver and "driven wreck" were the main targets of the national safety congress and expedition today, and safety experts sought ways and means of making traffic on the nation's highways less dangerous.

Uniform laws governing the periodic inspection of automobiles in all states were urged as the only practical means of eliminating the automobiles that endanger lives because they are in such a worn condition that they cannot be controlled properly.

PAPERS WARNED

Senate Committee To Sue For Libel
If Accusations are Published.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—A warning to newspapers that repeated publication of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick's wire-tapping charges against the senate campaign fund investigating committee will be regarded as "wilful and malicious libel" was issued yesterday over the signatures of four members of the committee.

The statement characterized the accusations of the Illinois Republican senatorial nominee as "false and libelous."

It repeated a specific denial of each of her accusations and charged that "newspapers have been induced by Mrs. McCormick's well-organized publicity to misrepresent the activities of the committee, distort the news of its proceedings and to repeatedly print false statements from the tongue and pen of Mrs. McCormick in apparent disregard of libel laws."

MOB THREAT QUELLED

By The Associated Press
HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Sept. 23.—After use of tear gas and bayonets by National Guardsmen to protect a negro prisoner from a mob, all was quiet at the county jail today. Guardsmen charged with fixed bayonets as a crowd estimated at 1,000 persons advanced last night on a roped-off arena around the jail, where G. E. Henderson, negro, is held as a suspect in the slaying of H. E. Ross, Huntsville business man.

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Efficient and economical distribution is a factor that must follow closely upon the heels of low cost production on American farms, Sam R. McKelvey, member of the federal farm board, told the Illinois manufacturers' costs association today.

"This is the factor that perhaps has been most wanting in agricultural progress," he said. "The spread between the producer and the ultimate consumer has been too great. This is one of the reasons for the agricultural marketing act."

"It is the particular reason why the farm board has assisted co-operatives in establishing central sales agencies through which they could exercise the maximum control in getting products of the farm by the shortest and most efficient route to the wholesaler, retailer and ultimate consumer."

"Private traders engaged in handling farm commodities look askance at such a program. Some of them criticize the federal farm board for meddling in it, and go so far as to refer to it as the government in business. It is nothing of the kind. These co-operatives are just as privately owned and privately managed as any other private business."

Thomas A. Edison has demonstrated that goldenrod is not responsible for hay fever, but it's a pretty safe bet that the average hay-fever sufferer who went north allegedly for relief will hang on there till the frosts come to be on the safe side.

Wouldn't it be awful should somebody suggest that Will Rogers, to whom Harry Lauder is said to be a mere neophyte when it comes to the matter of ability in hanging on to his coin, come across and take up the checks aggregating $13,500 given for gambling losses by his fair young dinner guest?

If we get Commissioner Woodcock correctly, prohibition agents will not molest the makers of homemade wine if it is for their own use in their homes, not because it isn't a violation of the prohibition law, but because of the manifest inability of his department to stop such wine-making. Paris reports that European tension is relaxed, despite the breaking-off of the Franco-Italian naval negotiations and the "startling" results of the German elections. Maybe so, but one of these days Mussolini may sneeze again, and Europe will once more be up in the air.

Another Inca Treasure Story.

From Guayaquil, Ecuador, comes report of the discovery, by a party of treasure hunters in a mountain fastness of the Andes, of the fabulous treasure and the remains of Atahualpa, the last and one of the richest of the Inca kings.

News of the reported discovery became public when the leader of the treasure-seeking party, Senor Julio Torres, requested the minister of the treasury of Ecuador to send troops to him to protect his diggers from attack by seven or eight hundred Indians found guarding the treasure, and to guard it while being transported to Guayaquil.

The finding of an Inca idol and skeletons in a cave in a mountain pass at Azuay convinced the treasure hunters that they were on the trail leading to the treasure collected as part of the ransom demanded by Francisco Pizarro in exchange for the life of Atahualpa.

The reported discovery recalls the old story of the treacherous slaying of the last of the Inca kings. Captured by Pizarro in 1533, Atahualpa offered to fill his cell with treasure as high as he could reach his hands if his life were spared. Pizarro accepted the offer, and treasure of an estimated value of $15,000,000 was delivered by the Incas when they learned that the Spaniard had broken his promise and murdered his prisoner. The Incas are said to have hidden the balance of the treasure they had collected for Atahualpa's ransom, which was the greater part of it, in a mountain cave.

The hunt for the Inca treasure reported thus to have been hidden away, has gone on over a great period of years, adventurous souls having been led to search for it by the story that a poor Spaniard, who had married an Inca maiden and through her became acquainted with the location of the treasure, had suddenly displayed enormous wealth and shortly thereafter sailed with his bride and his fortune for Spain. On his deathbed he is said to have revealed that the bulk of the treasure, of which he had taken but a small part, was hidden in a cave in the Margasita mountains and gave directions for finding it. Followed by many, the trail was always lost in the mountains and up to the present the treasure was never located, if Senor Torres has found it as reported, for the report of its finding is open to doubt, due to the fact that although great Inca treasure stores have repeatedly been reported found, up to the present none has been brought back to civilization.

French Cupidity.

Had the French government deliberately planned to demonstrate to the world that it is lacking in honesty, it could not have taken a shorter or surer course than that it has in its contention that it is justified in asking British holders of certain French securities to accept approximately twenty-five per cent. of what they paid for them in full satisfaction of the debt owed to them.

During the World War, the French government sold something like 1,500,000,000 francs' worth of its securities in Great Britain. Approximately two-thirds of this indebtedness was to draw interest at five per cent. and the remaining third at four. During the period of the purchase—1915 to 1918—the average worth of the franc in our money was about sixteen cents. The British creditors naturally want what they paid for the securities and the interest thereon, and Chancellor of the Exchequer Snowden insists that they be paid on that basis. The French, on the other hand, hold that they borrowed the equivalent of 1,500,000,000 francs and they propose to pay the debt, or rather talk of paying it, in francs. "Francs are francs," they say. But whereas the franc was worth sixteen cents at the time the money was borrowed, it is now worth a trifle less than four cents. "Our citizens had to take franc for franc," the French government says, "and so must the citizens of other lands." In a word, France insists that the British creditors lose three-fourths of their investment and three-fourths of the interest thereon.

The weakness of the French position is that when Brazil and Yugoslavia attempted to repay debts they owed France, franc for franc, the French government would not listen to their proposals, and forced them to pay on the same basis as that demanded by Chancellor Snowden. With the French, it is a case of "Heads we win and tails you lose" in the matter of the debt they owe citizens of Britain, and such has been their course in all their debt transactions with other governments, or the nationals of other governments, during or immediately following the World War, whether the debts were incurred by or due to them—the French. Invariably they have sought the advantage, if in no other way, than by pleading poverty, as they did in arranging for the payment of the debt they owed the United States.

France is the most prosperous land on the face of the earth today and best able to practice the tenets of governmental decency in money matters, and yet she has begged off paying half her debt to the United States by making a poor face, is seeking to settle with her British creditors for twenty-five cents on the dollar and at the same time is exacting her "pound of flesh" from Germany after having forced Brazil and Yugoslavia to settle on a 100 per cent. basis.

The cupidity displayed by the French government in this attempt to defraud the British holders of its securities of three-fourths of what is due them can hardly do other than lower it in the esteem of all nations making even so much as a pretension to governmental decency.

May Need Only a Bath.

While it is doubtless true that the county commissioners are hard pressed for funds with which to make both ends meet in running the affairs of the political division committed to their supervision and management, it is hardly probable that they could not in some way find the way to making the clock in the courthouse tower more mercurial as a timepiece than it is at present. During daylight hours it passes muster, but as an indicator of the time in the night season it leaves much to be desired.

The clock's four faces have become so begrimed and the lights behind them are so dim—at least, they appear to be so dim—that it takes an "angle eye" to discern the hour in the night season unless the one seeking the time is within a radius of a block of the courthouse.

The washing of the faces might correct the trouble, and even should it be necessary to use lamps of more power behind them, the expense would be inconsiderable. As a business proposition, if a clock is to be lighted at all, it should be so lighted as to justify the expense of lighting, which the courthouse clock can hardly be held to do at present.

Doubtless the matter is due to an oversight in the press of other matters held more important. If this is the explanation, it is probable that the situation will be corrected shortly, now that the season is at hand when preparation is usually made for the coming of winter with the long nights it will bring.

Should Prove an Inspiration.

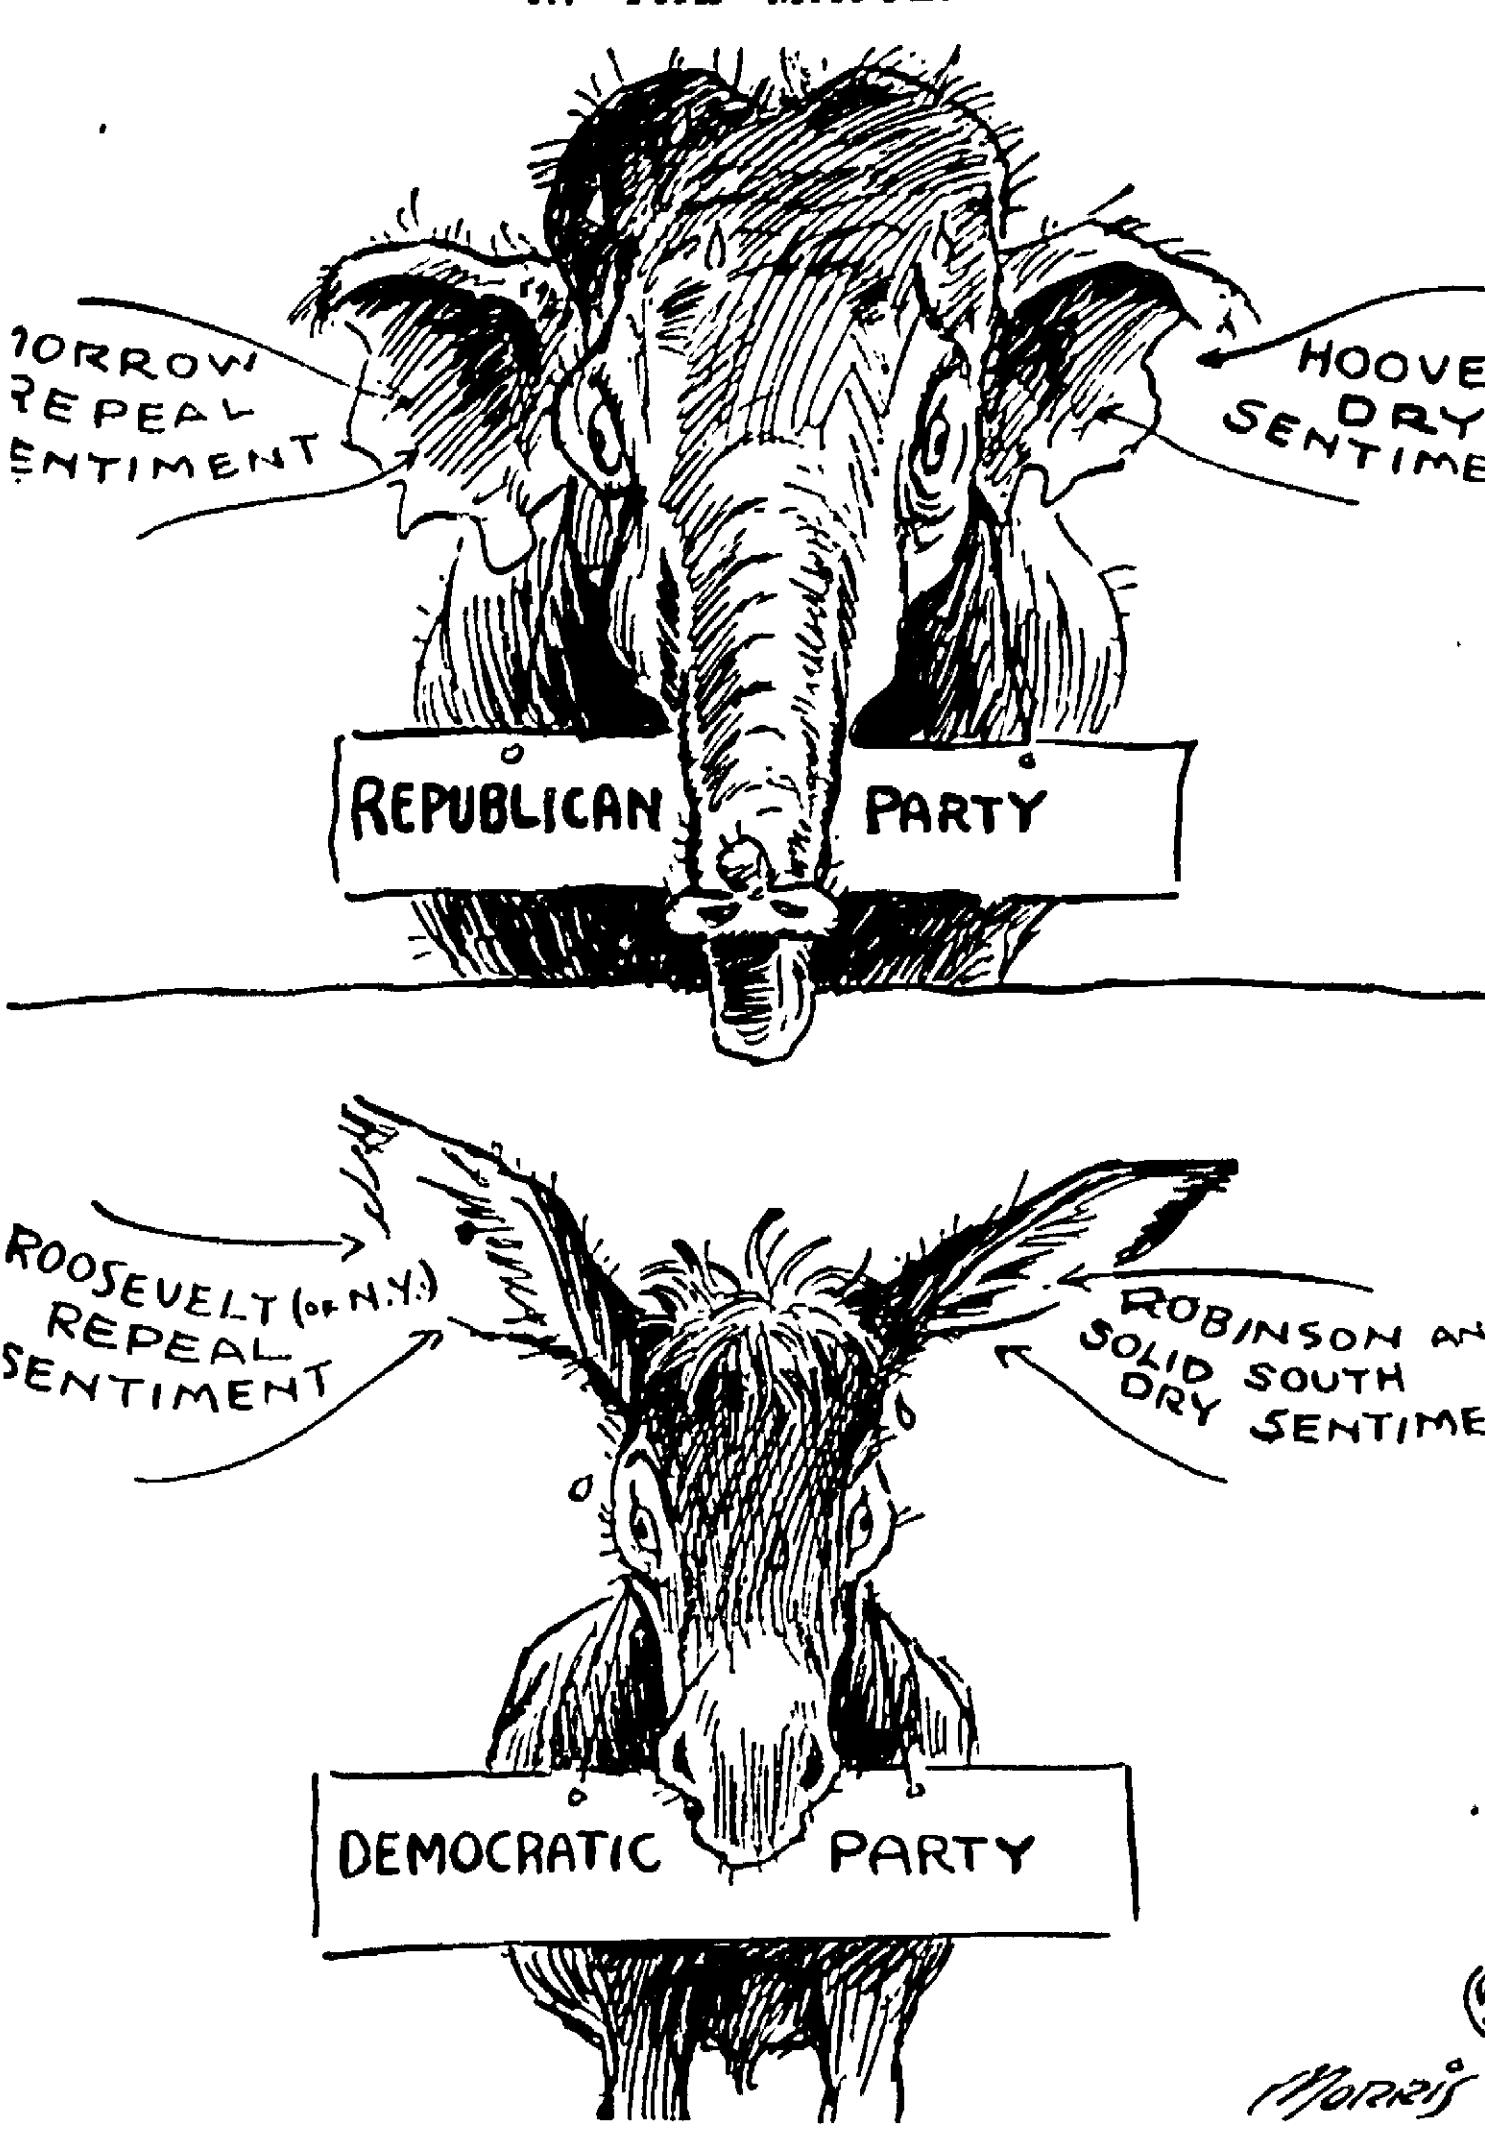

The career of Daniel Guggenheim should prove an inspiration to every American boy. He died at his home at Sands Point, Long Island, Sunday, rich in worldly goods, but far richer in the high esteem in which he was held by reason of his philanthropies, his encouragement of the arts and sciences, and the prominent part he took in the development of aviation in this country, to which he gave without stint of his means and at a time when the art of flying was most in need of encouragement and financial support. Commercial flying having developed with the amazing rapidity that it did, it was given to him to enjoy the privilege denied to many who on trust contribute to what they believe to be a worthy cause. He lived to see aviation so developed as an agency of transportation as to vindicate his judgment and justify his support. If it were but a dream to him, then he lived to see his dream become an actuality.

Some years ago Mr. Guggenheim retired from his industrial activities, but his works of philanthropy, his efforts for the advancement of mankind, his encouragement of all that was uplifting an ennobling, went on and now, that he is gone, his works live after him.

Such, in brief, is the story of the second of seven sons of a poor immigrant from Switzerland; such the story in short form of the boy, who by his own industry and perseverance, backed by high courage and will to succeed, became the dominant figure in the copper industry and an influence in the financial world.

One can not read of careers such as this and doubt that America is still a land of opportunity.

TWO EARS TO LISTEN WITH, BUT ONLY ONE VOICE IN THE MATTER.

Editorial Opinion.

THE POLITICOS WIN.

The resignation of Nicholas Roosevelt from the vice-governorship of the Philippines, a post to which he never proceeded, smooths out three of the four sharper angles of an unfortunate incident. The politicians in Manila will rejoice over the disfigurement of an appointee whose opinion of themselves does not agree with their own. Any unpleasantness that might have followed Mr. Roosevelt's arrival in Manila as vice-governor has been avoided. The senate's congenial opposition is deprived of an opportunity to knife another executive appointment.

The fourth angle remains to be seen and be solved. Will the victory they have won over Mr. Roosevelt cause the politicians to feel that they have advanced the cause of Philippine independence? If it does they will have to be disillusioned. As a matter of fact their conduct in this instance has cost their cause many friends. The evidence they have given of the ease with which they can stir up ill-feelings to burn books they can't read merely strengthens Mr. Roosevelt's contention that the heterogeneous people of the Philippines are not yet prepared for independence; that they are not yet adequately equipped to survive the experiment of living unprotected in this half-baked world's family of ravenous nations.

At Budapest, we doubt not, Mr. Roosevelt will find official life more agreeable. The Hungarians will not toss his writings into their "waters." Admiral Horthy has some ideas of his own on peoples who aspire to govern themselves, which ought to provide a subject for many a pleasant conversation with the American minister. The failure of Mr. Hoover to "sell" Mr. Roosevelt to the Philippines presumably will make the administration a little more careful in the future, when it is inclined to fill posts with efficiency, where tact and friendliness is required.—Detroit Free Press

THE MEGALOMANIAC IN POLITICS.
In Leipzig the other day Adolf Hitler, head of the German fascist party, melodramatically improved an opportunity afforded him by European legal procedure to advertise his alleged intentions in the event of his securing, by constitutional means, a reliable majority in the Reichstag.

When, or if, he wins such a majority, Hitler says, the peace treaties will be torn up, the German government will be reorganized on a nationalist and imperialist basis, and the criminals of 1918—presumably the men responsible for the signing of the treaty of Versailles—will be tried by a people's tribunal and dealt with mercilessly. Their heads "will be seen rolling in the sand," says Hitler.

This sort of megalomania is too familiar to make any one's flesh creep. Hitler sees with his mind's eye a fascist majority of the Reichstag within the next two years. But the voters of the German republic have to be reckoned with. They want peace and stability, not chaos and disaster. Hitler's success at the recent election has gone to his head. However, his fulminations are not nearly as important at this time as his disclaimer of revolutionary designs.

He has a right to continue peaceful propaganda. However, foolish speeches of the sort made by him in the Leipzig court are bound to create amusement rather than enthusiasm or alarm.—Chicago News.

The fire loss in the city for the month was only $40.

Use All Your Teeth.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

We never think about exercise of the jaws as important, yet exercise used in feeding is about the most fundamental and essential form of exercise there is. Vigorous chewing on both sides of the mouth develops the jaws and teeth properly, and tends to prevent tooth decay and overcrowding.

Indeed, in this connection, there are even more far-reaching effects that make for good health. When the jaws are doing, natural, honest, hard work, the whole digestive tract is benefited. There is increased activity in the formation of the gastric juices. The heart pumps faster and stronger, the pressure of the blood in the arteries rises, the circulation of the blood is stimulated to quicker flow. Digestion begins in the mouth. As soon as you begin vigorous chewing, the secretions of the mouth begin to flow. The secretions of the stomach and bowels are stimulated to action through the action of the nerve centers which send their message from the mouth to the brain and back to the stomach.

It is most important to teach every young child to chew his food thoroughly, and to chew on both sides of the mouth. If he doesn't do this, his face may be more developed than the other. And most children, being reasonable beings, would best be told the reasons why they should chew properly.

It is not easy to bring up a child in the way he should go. Watch your child carefully and see what his habits are in this respect. Appeal to his intelligence and tell him why he should mend his ways.

Don't allow a child to bolt his food. It is a habit difficult to break. He is certain to have bad digestion. If he persists, and this may lead to much worse things.

Chewing hard and tough foods strengthens the teeth and jaws, and helps to keep them strong. Eating raw, ripe apples, and all the firm, fibrous fruits and vegetables is invaluable for cleansing the teeth and promoting digestion. Soft foods cling to the teeth and permit tartar to form. That is one reason why eating cake, candy, chocolate and like things at bedtime is bad for you—to say nothing of causing indigestion.

Adults, as well as children, should take heed of this matter of chewing thoroughly and on both sides of the mouth. Long life and a happy one depends much upon good teeth. Keep them in perfect condition, and teach the children to begin early. Proper habits formed in early life will prevent much misery in later life.—Copyright, 1930, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

New York, Sept. 30.—All my life, save a boyhood period of living with my grandmother, I have resided in hotels. So after a fashion I have grown up with bellhops and watched many flower into merchant princes, theatrical producers, stage and screen stars and boulevard kings.

Following a recent experiment in housekeeping, which is perfectly dandy thanks, the feature most missed in the new regime is the bell hop. He had become as necessary in my life as the telephone. He was the external soother of that mysterious abstraction we call the human mind.

He brought the mail, newspapers, kept unwelcome visitors away, aired the dog, tipped off the latest dirty book, below stairs whisperings and often has a hot twenty-to-one selection at Belmont or Hare de Grace. In my case he was often not only a friend, but counselor.

Few young men are so shrewd as your experienced bell hop. His wits have been sharpened on the flagstones of experience. He knows his—whatever the reigning vegetable is. And in his seasonal migratory flights to Havana, Palm Beach, Tia Juana he learned to know people. Not many fool him.

I may have been fortunate in my contact with bell hops, but I have yet to run across one of the fraternity who was disloyal or have I ever caught one in a dishonest act. They have had innumerable chances to steal clothes, money and jewelry, with little chance of detection. But they never have. With extreme important missions without a single fumble there is one unforgettable instance. During an after midnight hold-up in a hotel lobby a bell hop risked his life to shove me into an elevator and slam the self-locking doors while guns were pointed at his red head.

But when you leave the bellhop's world his interest dies. Today I ran across one who had labored in three hotels where I lived. I told him of my new manner of living. He listened in obvious boredom, exhaled a deep drag from his cigarette and commented: "Yeah?"

O, yes, I almost forgot. One of the problems in a non-hot existence is what to do about stationery. Anything to make it tough for McIntyre? Incidentally, fellow thieves, there is swell stationery at the new Pierre's, gold embossed and a smart address, but the house dick has the tenacity of a hound trailing a covered wagon.

For many years the Gibson house in Cincinnati was my stationer. But one day—indeed practically over night—they made you ask for it from the room clerk and while they lost a customer the Sinton won one.

Feioid gestures were made by little shops on Broadway to keep going during the lowest days of the summer depression. A fierce wind blew east in flaming red near the Winter Garden announced: "Come in select your wants, pay what you please. We ask to live!" The frankness attracted many passersby.

An economist calls the worst sag of the summer—and can you handle it?—a "mere hypothetical hiatus." But I prefer the observation of the hardware merchant in our town who wrote me last August: "Prosperity is getting no further than you can kick a barrel."

Nothing is quite so disarming as flattery. This morning on the warpath I visited a dry-cleaning establishment that not only had most of the buttons off a suit, but had not left enough lining to dust off an aboe. After I aired my grievance and right in the middle of my nastiest look, he observed: "I read your articles. Pretty good, too." I'm sharper than anything detecting a public clamor for my stuff that day, so we parted with a warm handshake. It wasn't much of a suit anyhow.

Peter B. Kyne, the author, has rounded into the metropolis after a long stay in his native California. The gum-glumming Kyne is not only a master fictionist, but one of the wildest of raconteurs. He is reputed to have kept a dinner party in constant laughter from 8 o'clock until 3 a. m. the other night.

This from S. T. D.: "You try to be a city chap with spats and pastel-shaded shirts, but they don't click. Platsburg and Gallipoli stick out like your eyes. You lack metropolitan nonchalance and that is not acquired."

De Broglie and Wave Mechanics.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The winner of the Nobel prize for physics in 1929, Professor Louis de Broglie, of the Poincaré Institute in Paris, has given impetus to the study of a fascinating known as wave mechanics. He has juxtaposition the current theories of light matter, and shown the necessity for the creation of scientific attitude toward these theories.

Some years ago, De Broglie set himself the task of raising, scientifically, the following questions: If for a century we have neglected too much the corpuscular aspect in the light in our exclusive attachment to the wave we have not erred in the opposite direction the theory of matter? Have we not neglected the point of view in waves thought only of corpuscles?

According to the old mechanics, the way associated with a moving particle and advancing in the direction of motion is propagated along to the laws of geometrical optics. According to the new mechanics the approximation of geometrical optics are not sufficient to describe the process. According to this new undulating conception of dynamics a cloud consisting of electrons with the velocity must be associated with what is known as a plane monochromatic wave.

A remarkable series of experiments, including these notions, have recently been carried out by Davison and Germer in New York by Professor G. P. Thompson in Aberdeen, by Rupp in Goettingen. These results clearly established the necessity of introducing simultaneously particles and waves into whole domain of physics.

How is it possible to reconcile two such disparate and dissimilar concepts as corpuscle and undulatory movements? How find for both corpuscles and waves in the physical phenomenon? Schrodinger suggests that we should think of the particle or electron as contributed by a group of waves. But ingenious "wave packet theory," while explaining many of the physical phenomena, breaks down in the case of the diffraction of an electron by a crystal. In his introduction to "Study of Wave Mechanics," he has explained his own theory of the "pivot-wave," but fesses that it cannot be regarded as satisfactory. The most favored theory has been founded by Heisenberg and Bohr. Unfortunately, they assume that the so-called does not represent a physical phenomenon, but rather a symbolic representation of what we know about the particle. Such a theory but accretes our present ignorance, and shows illusory nature of many current physical theories.—Copyright, 1930, International Nature Service, Inc.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Sept. 30.—After more than thirty years of continuous service in Congress—seven terms as representative and two terms as senator—Senator Joseph E. Ransdell, of Louisiana, has met political death. On the eve of his seventy-second birthday this mild-mannered, kindly and modest man, who enjoys immense personal popularity in Louisiana, was beaten at the polls by youthful, fighting governor of Louisiana Huey P. Long.

Senator Ransdell's departure from the state removes one of that body's most turgid figures. Though for the greater part of the time was content to sit by and look on, his gray white "chin whiskers" and frock coat made easy to pick him out on the floor. It is not often that he entered debate, but when did arise from his seat on the left side of aisle he was heard.

His voice, though rather thin, carried far. His "chin whiskers" wiggle in perfect time with his words.

His years in congress are marked by espousal of two causes which lie close to his heart—control and creation of a national health statute.

The first commanded his interest because it was of paramount interest to his native state. From the day he first took his seat in house in 1899, Senator Ransdell made it control his specialty. And he worked consistently for the cause down through the years—until 1928, when he saw his efforts rewarded by the passage of the national flood control act, providing that the federal government charge and pay the cost of flood control in Mississippi valley.

His national institute of health was his life-long hobby. During the latter years of his senate career, he worked unceasingly for the project. This year, he realized his dream when the bill finally concluded its long and difficult congressional journey.

The Ransdell bill contemplates a great cooperative scientific organization for health research. Leading experts in every branch science would be brought together and given opportunity to work under one head to ascertain the cause, prevention and cure of diseases affecting human beings.

Outside the senate, he lived quietly, not clinging for the social life Washington affords man of his rank.

He turned to his 110-acre pecan orchard down in Louisiana, some two miles from the bay of the Mississippi, for recreation. For thirty years he has enjoyed this orchard—propagating new species, building up intimate little store about various trees which he delights in telling.

From Washington he was in the habit of writing voluminous letters to a trusted negro on his plantation, outlining just what should be done in his pecan grove.

An Early Ohio Bee Man.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

To the late A. L. Root is given full credit for raising bee keeping to the level of business and establishing a market for beekeepers supplies that is one of the great manufacturing institutions of this state.

He was not the first Ohio man to become notable for what he had found out about the bee. His name was Lorenzo Lorraine Lesslie, and Henry Howe, the Ohio historian, found him at Oxford, Ohio, in 1858.

Longstreth came into Howe's office in Cincinnati one day and extending his hand greeted him pleasantly by name. Howe could not recognize him. "I'm not surprised," said Longstreth, "it is forty years since we have met." Then Howe recalled him as a struggling schoolmaster back in New Haven, Connecticut, with whom he used to go fishing and swimming.

Longstreth then related that he had entered the ministry of the church which had been interrupted by successive seasons of destitution and exuberance, which had compelled him to give up the work.

In this condition he had turned his attention to the study of the bee in which he came much fascinated. He had written a book which was to be "filled with the honey of a kindly, benign nature" and had been called "The Hub of America."

The similarity of the name to that of Longstreth, the inventor of the hive frame, was greatly simplified honey production, and was also been a clerkman, is striking.

British Leader To Speak Over NBC Network

J. RAMSAY MACDONALD, prime minister of England will renew acquaintance with the American radio audience Wednesday afternoon, according to plans for an international rebroadcast announced today by the National Broadcasting Company.

The voice of the British leader, which became familiar to listeners on this side of the Atlantic during his American visit last year, and later through rebroadcast reports from the London Naval Arms Conference, is expected to bridge the Atlantic Wednesday at 3:35 p. m.

The premier will discuss for 20 minutes the forthcoming imperial conference, which will be held in London late in October. This conference will bring to the capital of the empire all prime ministers and other leading citizens of British possessions throughout the world. It is expected that MacDonald's address Wednesday will be an advance message to the dominions on the purpose and program of the meeting.

Four outstanding figures from the field of education will face the microphone during a half-hour program through the WEAF network Tuesday at 8 p. m.

In the first all American program of the Philco Hour heard over WABC and the Columbia Broadcasting System Tuesday at 9:30 p. m., Howard Barlow will present for the first time on the air Ernest Schelling's "From Morocco."

A cycle of melodies by Jerome Kern and a medley of tunes from the motion picture "Monte Carlo," will be played by the orchestra under direction of Louis Katzman as the musical highlights of the Paramount-Publix Playhouse to be broadcast over WABC and the Columbia network Tuesday from 10:15 to 11 p. m.

If you hear the deep-throated moo of a cow over WBBM and the Columbia Farm Community network Wednesday at 1:45 p. m., it isn't just another imitation by the radio sound man. It will be doing her act from the banquet room of the Hotel La Salle, where the Chicago Association of Commerce is giving a luncheon for the dairy industries of the midwest.

MAAG BROTHERS BUS SERVICE EXTENDED

Marion Transit Firm Given Right To Carry Fostoria, Toledo Passengers.

Buses of the Maag Bros. Transit Co. Wednesday will replace electric cars of the C. F. & F. Railway Co. furnishing passenger service between Fostoria and Toledo. Permission to replace the electric car was granted by the utilities commission yesterday after hearing an application of the local bus company.

Service of the C. F. & F. line was suspended today. The railway company is now in the hands of a receiver. The line will be permanently abandoned, and tracks will be removed.

Addition of the Toledo-Fostoria line is another link in the chain of cities connected by buses of the local company.

For months, buses of the local company have been operating between Marion and Toledo by the way of Fostoria, but could not take Fostoria passengers to Toledo or vice versa because of the rights of the electric railway company. With the rail service abandoned, the buses making four daily trips between Marion and Toledo will now be used for Toledo-Fostoria service. An extra bus to run only between Fostoria and Toledo will supplement this service by making six daily trips.

Ohio Boy is Healthiest

"MY little son, Billy, had a bad case of measles," says Mrs. V. Sherman, 7027 Zoster Ave., Cleveland. "He was having a hard time until I heard of California Fig Syrup and got him some. The first few doses regulated his bowels, brightened him up marvellously; even seemed to reduce his fever a great deal."

"I have since used Fig Syrup with Billy during colds or upsets. It has been a wonderful help to him; has assisted in making him the strong boy you see—perhaps the healthiest one in our neighborhood."

For more than fifty years, mothers have praised California Fig Syrup. Leading physicians advise its use with bilious, headachy, constipated children, or to keep the bowels open during colds or children's diseases. Children love its rich, fruity flavor. It tones and strengthens weakened bowels; helps make children robust.

Look for the name California when buying. That marks the genuine.

we went around to the new house, but a man had been left there to watch it. Nobody wants a boy to have any fun.

We went down to the dam and got some old fence boards and made a camp fire, and then some one yoo-hooed and there came Feeble and Yonnis and Maggie striding down the hill, and they got us to play blind man's bluff with Whitey's handkerchief over our eyes, and when it was the Last Bag of Tripe's turn Feeble got between him and the pond and made a noise and he jumped to grab her and she wasn't there and he was in the pond. We had a good time, all but him.

Then we went to my house and my mother broke up a hot lot of bread and buttered it for us. She is a good mother.

Newspaper Condemns "Grain Dumping" Charge

By International News Service MOSCOW, Sept. 30.—The present outcry against alleged "dumping" of grain on foreign markets by the Soviet was bitterly condemned today by the newspaper Pravda, official Communist organ.

The charges of "dumping," the publication declared, can be explained as a new wave of poison gas attack on the Soviet government, and an imperialist attempt to stir up world sentiment and war against the Soviet regime.

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADRIAN GARRISON

Phil Veritzen Claims the First Dance.

Dance.

THERE was distinct petulance in Helen's tones as she petulance of the petted woman whose husband has granted her every wish. That she wanted to join in the dancing and was amused at her brother-in-law for staying on the floor with the younger people thus making the older group a man short, was patience to everybody. Both Dicky, her dinner partner and Harry caught the cue cleverly. Dicky, I knew through years of seeing Charles Owen whom he knew Lillian disliked and feared dancing with Marion

"Forget about your brother-in-law," Dicky said, "and tread a measure with me, won't you?"

"I'll just mosey out there and send him in," Mr. Underwood said. "I want one turn around the room with Marion, but I don't expect I'll get more than half a turn before I'm shelved again. I'll stay shelved and come back here to the chaperon line. I'll don't feel like dancing tonight, I know, and my own old bones are rheumatic, so we'll stake ourselves out a nice section and be here to console

the waitresses, if any."

"Here's the first one," Edith Fairfax said with a smile on the voice, though she laughed at the sneer. But I knew that the sight of Dicky dancing off with someone else had upset her, as strong had become the possessive feeling for him in which she had indulged herself progressively ever since their business partnership.

But Lillian's face was glowing as she turned it to me and murmured

so the rest could not hear.

"Isn't Harry sweet?"

Lillian's Festive Spirit Shadowed

I needed an assent, for I knew that it was that she had touched her so deeply. There was a trace of renewal in her other allment in Harry Underwood's music of nerves despite the many hardships which have been his. But with the infinite tact and understanding which is his for his wife, he had divined that she would rather not dance tonight when, for all she knew, Robert Savarin's spirit might be slipping out of life. She did not love the artist who had given her such ardent devotion—all her love was her husband's, but she was not long from the farewell interview with him which the dying man had begged, and it could not help out shadow all the Christmas festivities for her although she let no one deduce the fact from any speech or action of hers. But her husband knew, and he was delicately telling her of that knowledge and of his determination to share her tacit action.

I felt a light touch upon my arm and turning met my employer's questioning eyes.

"Will you dance?" he said formally, with a little Old World bow.

I bowed in answer, and with the grace and formality of an earlier day investing the modern dance steps with which he had familiarized himself, he gave me a most enjoyable turn around the room. I saw Mr. Owen taking Edith out when Harry Underwood had come back to Lillian. There was no long line among the older group, and I found myself estimating how long

I should have to dance with my

"They are absolutely free, such as they are," I told him, hurriedly searching my mind for a "thought" which could be put into immediate words. "I was thinking that I never have seen a more charming dance. The girls are so lovely, the young men so well up, and they are all having so wonderful

a time."

"Are they?" His voice was iron-ical and held a hint of displeasure.

"My young cub doesn't look particularly blissful. He's evidently a man of one idea tonight, and that is to follow Miss Mary around the hall cutting in, at every opportunity. I don't think he's danced with another girl so far. He's making a perfect ass of himself.

But Colin will be too much for him. No amateur can compete with a professional."

CARDS, A'S PRIMED FOR SERIES

VETERAN SPITBALLER TO HURL IN OPENER

Grimes To Start for Redbirds; Mack Silent on Mound Choice.

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor
PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—Most of the other burning issues having been settled for the year, the teams trooped into Philadelphia today for the opening of the world's series of baseball.

It starts tomorrow with the home-town Athletics, two-time champions of the American league, favored to unlimber a couple of double-barreled guns, Simmons and Fox, and check the sensational flight of the Red Birds of St. Louis, champions of the National league.

The city of Quakers has taken the situation this year much more calmly than was the case a year ago, when the return of Connie Mack and his young men to the baseball heights after a lapse of 15 years created a semi-hysterical outburst of enthusiasm. There has so far been no demonstration over the A's to compare with the mob scenes attending the crowning golf triumph of Bobby Jones in the suburbs last Saturday, nor has it been necessary to call out the marines to control the situation at Shibe park.

To Pack Park
Nevertheless, the big American league stadium is expected to be packed to its enlarged limit of 33,000 spectators for the opening.

SHUTE DEFENDS OHIO OPEN GOLF CROWN

1929 Champ Expected To Repeat Last Year's Victory in Columbus.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 30.—Denny Shute, who won the Ohio open golf championship last year when he competed in it for the first time, today began the defense of his honor over the Elks Country club course where he brought his game to its present high level.

Years of familiarity with the course while his father was professional there were a prominent factor in installing Denny as favorite to repeat his 1929 victory.

Shute had competition from 50 other Ohio professionals and half a dozen amateurs whose presence made it a truly open tournament but was not expected to change the result much.

Two rounds today and two more tomorrow will decide the issue on a total of 72 holes. Par for the layout is 71, and Denny holds the course record. Jack Thompson won in 1928 at Dayton and Weldon Crowder, Cleveland, in 1927.

Bishop-Harriers Open Cross Country Schedule

By Brush-Moore Leased Wire
DELAWARE, O., Sept. 30.—Ohio Wesleyan university's cross country team faces the most strenuous schedule it has ever had beginning with its dual meet with Ohio university here Saturday. For eight consecutive Saturdays, the Bishop Harriers will be busy meeting, in addition to their Buckeye conference foes, Michigan State normal, Muskingum and Western Reserve.

Completing their strenuous season, the Bishops will be hosts to the Buckeye conference annual cross country meet at Selby field Nov. 22.

game tomorrow, when the occasion will take on dignity through the presence of president of the United States and his party.

Aalde from the stampede for tickets and the rather brisk argument over the relative merits of contending clubs, the main question is: Who will pitch the opener?

Charles (Gabby) Street, the veteran pilot of the St. Louis Cardinals, has already furnished his answer by naming the old spitballer, Eurligh-Grimes, to start the Red Birds on another winning flight.

Volunteers have named Robert Moore (Lefty) Grove to take the hill for the Athletics, but the man who makes the decision, Connie Mack, has so far refused to indicate his selection.

Wulberg May Start
The "tall tower" crossed the experts completely a year ago by starting Howard Ehmke in the first game with the Cubs and winning this surprising maneuver, quite a few of the boys are covering up their selection of Grove by suggesting Mack may start Rube Wulberg, Bill Shores, a young right-hander, or even old Jack Quinn.

Logic favors Grove, not only on the strength of his great record for the year and the fact that he is the No. 1 man of the A's staff, but also because it will enable Mack to send the slim southpaw back into action at an earlier date.

Headquarters of the Cardinals, in fact, has turned out to be the most enthusiastic spot in town.

Two months ago the Red Birds were hunkering on in first division. They walked their way upward with a rush that gave them 44 victories out of their last 57 games.

National league men unquestionably are banking upon the supreme confidence and dash of the Cardinals to locate the silver lining in the clouds that have hung over their entries in the last few world's championships. The record of one victory in their last 13 starts against American league opposition has been no balm whatever for the partisans of the circuit presided over by John Arnold Heydler.

Mack's Favored 3-2
Despite all this, the Mackmen have been established 3 to 2 favorites in the wagering.

The nearest thing the Cardinals have to Lefty Grove is Wild Bill Hallahan, a pitcher with a barrel of stuff, but neither the experience nor the control of the Mack ace.

The Red Birds have no Mickey Cochrane but they have a slugging backstop in Gus Mancuso, who has replaced Jimmy Wilson, injured regular. The National leaguers have no cleanup hitter of the caliber of Al Simmons but they have a number of batsmen who can break up the ball game, including Chick Harley, George Watkins and Frank Frisch, who doesn't expect an attack of hubbub to affect his work.

Unless Mack upsets expectations, the Athletics will place their pitching burden almost entirely on the shoulders of Grove and George Earnshaw, iron man right-hander, with Wulberg and Shores in reserve. The Cardinals have four or five first class boxmen. The list is headed by the crafty Grimes but includes Phil Rheim, Bill Hallahan, Sylvester Johnson and Jess Haines.

CLIMAXING and officially concluding the city recreational baseball season, the city baseball commission last night entertained nearly 100 backers and players of recreational baseball at the annual presentation dinner in the Y. M. C. A. Awards were made to the four winners of city baseball leagues and to the city champions. The affair was better attended than any previous occasion of the same kind. The president of the baseball commission, Norris Crissinger and W. N. Harder a member of the commission divided the duties of toastmaster.

Several local individuals, either connected with a particular city club or interested in local baseball in general gave short talks to the assembly. Of the speeches presented before the banquet all of them dealt particularly with the development of the sports in Marion in the last few years and pictured an even more rapid development in the future. Tribune was paid to the "unsung heroes" of the baseball game, the umpires.

Pennants Awarded
Following the series of short talks Crissinger presented the pennants to the winning teams of the city league races. Calvary Sunday school was given the Sunday School league No. 1 hunting and Lee Street Presbyterian the Sunday School league No. 2 gonfalon. The Kappas were given the Commercial league flag and Erie Roundhouse the Industrial league pennant.

The following members of the Erie Roundhouse club were given medals as a result of the team having won the city championship in the eight game world's series played following the close of the regular season: Williams, Sharrock, Lenz, Shoemaker, Robinson, Lusch, Lowery, Strawser, Burke, Hinklin, Price and Wilson.

DURLEIGH GRIMES

Grimes is the choice of Manager Gabby Street to hurl the opening game against the Philadelphia Athletics. We will probably be opposed on the mound by the ace of the A's staff, Lefty Grove. Grimes is one of the few spitballers left in the majors at the present time.

Marcum To Hurl For Colonels in Game Today

By The Associated Press
LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 30.—Albin Solthorn, manager of the Louisville Colonels, has selected Johnny Marcum, youthful right-hander to hurl the sixth game of the "little world series" between Louisville and Rochester here today.

Marcum, who recently was recalled from the Dayton club of the central league, has only pitched five games for the Colonels. Of these he won four and was not credited with a loss in the fifth.

Manager Billy Southworth of the Rochester Redwings did not announce his mound choice, but it was anticipated that John Berley would start. Rochester is leading by three games to two in the series, which is to be decided by five out of nine games.

VON ELM IN ATTACK ON GOVERNING RULES OF GOLF ASSOCIATION

Star Golfer Charges U. S. G. A. with Commercializing Play.

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—George Von Elm, national amateur champion, in 1928, has bidden an official farewell to amateur golf competition, and at the same time, taken a pot shot at the United States Golf Association and its policies.

Von Elm, in a formal statement, declared he would be in the future a "business-man" golfer, neither amateur nor professional, who expects to take the profits from open prize money and yet maintain his own private business.

The Detroit star, only man who has beaten Bobby Jones in a 36-hole match in the last seven years of the amateur championship, termed the tournament a "highly organized commercialized project."

"Fifty thousand dollars is paid in for the amateur show," he said, "while the 32 performers play their hearts out for honor and glory. Not a penny of that money is contributed by the U. S. G. A. to the expenses of the players. Tournament golf today is show business in a big way."

The finger of suspicion points to many players of amateur golf today but the show must go on, and the U. S. G. A. is busy a good part of the time straining at goats and swallowing camels.

"From this day henceforth I am no longer an amateur golfer as defined in the rules of the game. Neither am I a golf professional nor a professional golfer. I am not qualified by training of any kind to become a golf professional. I am simply a business-man golfer."

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—Swift workouts were on Illinois' program for the rest of the week as Zuppke's men prepared for the season's opener with Iowa State. Considerable stress was placed on forward pass plays last night.

CHICAGO—A hint of what might when they clash with Chicago university was obtained today when a spectacular display of the difficult "flanker" play showed it had reached mid-season perfection.

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Scrimmage was on Michigan's football schedule for today as 25 youngsters were relegated to the "B" squad in the season's first cut. Aiming to overcome some of the defects apparent against Fennelon and State Normal, Coach Kipke ordered a double-barreled workout for the varsity gridlers, the first today and the second on Thursday.

1930 Grid Rule Explanations

- ANSWERS
1. Team A is penalized 15 yards for interfering with fair catch. No signal was necessary for B.

Chicago Fans Flock to Cub-Sox Series

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—Chicago baseball fans have been deprived of world series entertainment at home, but are warming up to the city series between the Cubs and White Sox, to the extent of lining up for an advance sale of nearly 40,000 for the first game tomorrow.

The first two games of the intramural championship series will be played at Comiskey park, stronghold of the White Sox.

Haberdashers Finish First in Tournament

Marion Haberdashers won a recreational baseball tournament Sunday in Secaucus Park near Bucyrus. The locals defeated the Bucyrus Eagles in the first game 2 to 1 and walloped Crestline 18 to 1 in the second game. Hap Applegett hurled the first contest and Bryant Corwin was on the mound for the second. Wolfe caught both games. Roush and Cram both connected for circuit clouts. Jerry Niemeyer starred in the outfield for the Marion team.

STOCKS DECLINE IN SALES WAVE

Persistent Selling Forces In-crease to Low Mark Today.

By International News Service
NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—After another powerful and widespread selling wave in a 2,000-point session today, the industrial stocks again have bottomed out, with the lowest level of the year being reached. In three hours of trading, from yesterday at 11:30 until noon today, nearly 200 shares were turned over at a fast and furious pace, which is evidence of the culmination of the selling move. The states and other industrial stocks were virtually "snowed" out of the first hour by a wave of selling which forced the price of the lowest level of the year to 155 1/2 for a share. The General Electric, which was at 118 1/2, down to 116 1/2; Westinghouse to 126 1/2; and the copper stocks were also in the selling wave. The copper metal dropped from 10 cents a pound, to 9 1/2 cents, and the demand for the metal at this price.

The motor car stocks were also in the selling wave, with the price of the Ford Motor Company, which was at 38, down to 36 1/2; and the Chrysler, which was at 20, down to 19 1/2. The price of the Ford Motor Company, which was at 38, down to 36 1/2; and the Chrysler, which was at 20, down to 19 1/2.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

The arrival of Jonathan apples on the fruit market today is perhaps the most outstanding change in the complexion of markets. The price is three pounds for 25 cents. The cold snap, sending the mercury down to near-frost levels, was not without its effect on local markets. Fruit and fresh vegetables from Marion county will soon be off the list. Cucumbers, tomatoes, sweet corn and other popular produce from local gardens are rapidly disappearing as a result of the cooler weather.

GRAINS SCORE EARLY GAINS

Liverpool Quotations Affect Chicago Prices; Corn Down Slightly.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Unlooked for sharp upturns of wheat quotations at Liverpool met with quick response here today, all Chicago grain prices scoring an early advance. Liverpool reported less pressure to sell Russian and Canadian wheat abroad, and it was pointed out here that should this prove to be the turning point of world wheat price depression, upturns would be from the lowest level in 5 years. Opening 1/2¢ higher, Chicago wheat future contracts afterward fluctuated nervously, but held near to the initial range. Corn started 1/4¢ up, and subsequently reacted somewhat.

Buying of wheat futures in Chicago today showed nothing in the nature of a stampede, but proceeded in orderly fashion, and during much of the time consisted in large degree of purchases for previous sellers who were changing their market position. Meanwhile, profit-taking sales on the bulges in price tended to curb the rising trend. Aside from the altered swing of the Liverpool market, some stimulus to friends of higher prices was seen in a statement credited to Chairman Legge of the federal farm board that there was no actual surplus of wheat in the United States above feeding and milling requirements. The statement was considered a relation to the total feed supply of all grains.

FARMERS TO BENEFIT FROM LOWER RATES

Freight Charges in Drouth Area To Be Reduced Until Oct. 31.

Marion county farmers will be able to purchase a number of farm commodities, principally livestock and feeds, at substantial savings in the next five weeks, as the result of drouth relief measures in the county in charge of R. N. Lovett, teacher of vocational agriculture in Green Camp schools. Lovett is now issuing permits to persons or firms importing carload lots of feed, grain, mixed feeds, hay and livestock, providing these commodities are to be sold to Marion county farmers. Savings of between 33 and 50 per cent of usual freight rates may be obtained by presenting these slips to local freight agents.

These permits will be issued by Mr. Lovett until Oct. 31, he said today. Reduced freight rates are not available for shipments of fertilizer.

Permits may be obtained from Lovett at Green Camp.

The movement of feed and livestock from the west and south at reduced freight rates into the drouth area, generally defined as east of Chicago and St. Louis and north of the Ohio river, is the objective of the drouth relief offered by the U. S. secretary of agriculture, Arthur M. Hyde. Lovett was appointed authorized agent to distribute permits in Marion county.
